

Amount Of Spent Nuclear Fuel Per Household Per Year

I have frequently been told that the amount of spent fuel created by producing electricity for each household in the UK would be the size of a pound coin – however, this ignores the shielding needed to isolate the radioactivity for a few hundred thousand years.

For more information see: <http://www.plux.co.uk/mass-and-volume-of-spent-nuclear-fuel/>

